

French Guiana solar battery for house

Voltalia has recently announced the commissioning of its Sable Blanc power plant combining solar photovoltaic production and battery energy storage in French Guiana. Developed entirely by the company, the hybrid project is claimed to benefit from a guaranteed sales price for 20 years.

French renewable energy company Voltalia has completed the expansion of a renewable energy plant in French Guiana, adding a battery energy storage system (BESS) of 10.6MWh. The Paris-listed company announced the commissioning of the Sable Blanc solar-plus-storage project yesterday (10 May).

French renewable power producer Voltalia SA (EPA:VL TSA) has started the construction works on a 5-MW solar farm combined with a 10.6-MWh lithium-ion battery storage unit in French Guiana.

French firm Voltalia has started building the largest energy storage system in French Guiana made up of two separate lithium-ion batteries.

This electricity will be provided through the combination of a PV plant, mass and long-term energy storage in the form of hydrogen, and short-term storage with batteries. The power generated by CEOG will be distributed on Guiana's grid ...

Voltalia currently operates solar, hydraulic, biomass and storage power plants in French Guiana with a combined capacity of 31 megawatts, allowing the coverage of nearly 10% of the main electricity grid consumption.

This electricity will be provided through the combination of a PV plant, mass and long-term energy storage in the form of hydrogen, and short-term storage with batteries. The power generated by CEOG will be distributed on Guiana's grid and its production will be framed in a 20 year contract.

In French Guiana, EDF now has eight solar facilities in service, including three that are equipped with battery storage systems. It represents close to 20 MW in total capacity.
