What does the Guam Energy Office do?

The Guam Energy Office, as a line agency within the Executive Branch, implements energy programs for the benefit of the island community using grants awarded by the U.S. Department of Energy - the State Energy Program (SEP) and the Weatherization Assistance Program (WAP).

Does Guam have electricity?

About four-fifths of Guam's electricity generating capacity runs on fossil fuels and the rest is fueled by renewables. The Guam Power Authority (GPA), a public corporation overseen by the elected Consolidated Commission on Utilities (CCU) and regulated by the Guam Public Utilities Commission (PUC), provides all of Guam's electricity.

Does Guam use fossil energy?

3 Guam has no fossil energy resources and meets nearly all of its energy needs--including the fuel for generating most of its electricity--with imported petroleum products. 4,5 However, Guam is increasing its use of renewable energy resources for electricity generation. 6,7

How does Guam generate its energy?

Guam generates almost all its energy from imports of petroleum products. It has no domestic production of conventional fuels such as oil, natural gas or coal. The economy of Guam is dependent on the import of gasoline and jet fuel for transport and residual fuel oil for electricity.

When will the Guam Energy Office reopen?

The Guam Energy Office will reopen for business starting Monday, June 1, 2020 from 8:00 am to 5:00 pm. Effective June 1, 2020, all GovGuam offices, agencies, and departments will recommence public operations. Continued compliance with Social Distancing rules will be strictly enforced, thus services will be limited to those with appointments only.

How much power does Guam generate?

Guam has a rated generating capacity of 560 MW, more than twice its historical highest load. This power is supplied by several plants burning residual fuel oil operated for the Guam Power Authority by independent power providers. In 2015, electricity in Guam cost 2.5 times as much as on the U.S. mainland.
