

Filling up starbases with solar panels are really good now! After a few techs each one gives about 10 energy. They compete with anchorages, but they can really power up your economy.

You cant reasonably compare trade hubs to solar panels, because they are doing very different things, yet slar panel are stable source of energy, while trade hubs are high risk high reward module, very specific, and strategically placed, can ...

After all, space is the perfect place for solar panels: never out of sunlight, no worries about dust / weather obscuring them, etc. And they're much lighter-weight than a ...

Solar panels are generally not worth the cost on a starbase. If your economy is great in every other way then monthly trades of alloy"s can ride you over on energy credits until you can build them up. Generally the best sources of energy credits are generator districts, space based mining, and trade.

Finally you need to consider the ROI, you are paying some 2250 Alloys to build up a starfortress and fit it with 6 solar panels. If that nets you 55 EC/month, then you got your investment covered in just 13½ years + build time, so ~20 years give and take.

It's incredibly efficient in the early game when Gestalts will be building their first solar panels, because it breaks the limit on building contruction, alloys, and science (if hives) being gated by a purchase of 52 minerals a month before you employ super-inefficient miners.

In practice, Solar Panels fulfill a completely different role from Trade Hubs. In the late-game they are strictly inferior to Anchorages, and they are primarily used as early-game productivity tools ...

Galactic community 2nd research (astral studies) doubles production of solar Panel, and curator and artist"s system unique starbase building.

I can't seem to find a non-gestalt (only machine intelligence) that can build solar panels on space stations (seems to be replaced with trade hubs for everyone else). Stellaris v2.2.4 DLC
